RIGHT—Charged with acting as agent for George (Machine Gun) Kelly in attempting to obtain $73,250 from the place it was hidden on a Texas farm, Langford Ramsey, 25, Memphis attorney, is under arrest. Ramsey is a brother of Kelly's first wife. The money, found by authorities, was reported to be Kelly's share of the Urschel kidnapping loot.

Fixing of Retail Prices Is Doomed

Government Heeds Economists' Warning Plan Is Unworkable

(Copyright, 1933, Associated Press)

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Price fixing in the form of minimum markups for the $9,000,000,000 food and grocery industry is slated for definite rejection by the farm adjustment administration.

This was disclosed authoritatively Friday night a few hours after the administration ordered a public hearing for October 9 on a master code for the industry including markup provisions of 2½ per cent for wholesalers and 7½ per cent for retailers.

In announcing the hearing some of the principal officials of the administration expressed disapproval of the plan. Soon afterward it became known that George N. Peek, the farm administrator, had determined that no price fixing would be authorized for price fixers by the farm administration except where codes or marketing agreements dealing with agriculture assured parity prices for farm products.

The master code contained no provision for directly improving farm prices and one of the principal reasons for ordering the hearing was the hope of the administration that definite provisions for doing this might be worked out.

Fred C. Howe, consumers counsel for the administration, in criticizing the markup provisions quoted economists and food distribution specialists as opposed to them on grounds they would lead to the crowding out of many small independent merchants.

Peek said he ordered the public hearing in order to permit "full opportunity for public discussion on the part of 'all those interested' and then added:

"The agricultural adjustment act is designed primarily to obtain parity prices for farmers. It does not provide for the guarantee of profits to any distributing agency."

Howe said the distributors who would be covered by the code had a volume of business last year of approximately $9,000,000,000 and that during the same period the farmer received slightly more than $5,000,000,000 for everything he produced, including cotton, tobacco, and other commodities, not covered by this industry.

The administration also said its economists and food distribution specialists who have studied the code regard the markup provisions as neither workable nor enforceable.

Hope Beaten 20-6 by Heavier Team at Camden Friday

Locals Hold Ouachita Men Scoreless for First Quarter

HOPE TALLIES LATE

Fake Run and Pass Puts Ball Over in Fourth Quarter

Maintaining a big advantage except for brief intervals in the second and fourth quarters, Camden High School Panthers scored a 20-6 victory over Hope's Bobcat football team at Camden Friday night.

Camden displayed a powerful line, averaging 180-pounds per man, against Hope's 155-pound forward wall. In the backfield the Bobcats were outweighed several pounds.

After playing scoreless ball in the first period, Camden scored its first marker early in the second quarter when Cathey, halfback, juggled the ball over on a spin play from the two-yard line. He again crossed the goal line late in the second quarter on a line plunge for five yards.

Camden worked the ball to within 20 yards of the Hope goal line in the third quarter where the Bobcats suffered a 15-yard penalty, placing the ball within easy scoring distance. O'Rear hit the line for Camden's third touchdown, ending the scoring for the Panthers.

Hope Scores
The Bobcats' touchdown came in the final period after a 60-yard march. Within five yards of the goal line Brown called for a line plunge. There was no gain. A fake spin play failed. He then took the ball on what looked like an end run, turned quickly and shot a pass to Turner who scampered over the chalk line. Brown attempted to kick for extra point, but missed.

In the first quarter Camden drove to the five-yard line four times, but were held for downs. Two other occasions the Panthers were on Hope's one-yard line during the first quarter. Again the Hope line held. Camden was in possession of the ball on Hope's six-yard line when the first quarter ended. The Bobcats were completely outplayed during the first quarter. Only due to Brown's good punting and defensive play on the part of Bobcat linemen at critical points, prevented Camden from scoring in the first quarter.

Camden took the ball over after three thrusts at the line at the start of the second quarter. A pass was completed for extra point.

Camden Gets Ball
Hope received and a good return on a lateral pass from Cargile to Brown carried the ball near mid-field. Hope showed good offensive spurs with Turner and Brown carrying the ball. Brown passed to Urban and Turner for several nice gains. What looked like a start for a touchdown was lost when the Bobcats fumbled, Camden recovering.

Camden tore off several yards through the line, and then a 20-yard pass was completed, placing the ball on Hope's five-yard line. Cathey carried it over on a line play for Camden's second touchdown. An attempted kick failed for extra point. Hope received. Harper returned to his 35-yard line. Brown made eight yards on an end run. The next play Brown

Debtor Gains Under Any Inflation Plan

Robert Talley Analyzes What Would Happen to Average Man If Dollar Were Cheapened

This is the second of two stories on inflation, in which a highly complicated subject of current interest is presented in simple form.

By ROBERT TALLEY
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—If inflation comes, how will it affect you?

Nobody can answer that question, because nobody really knows. Even among experts there is endless dispute and controversy as to the method by which inflation should be attempted, to what extent it should be tried, how far it could be controlled, and, above all, what results it would bring.

One set of eminent economists can paint for you a glowing picture of how cheapening of the nation's dollar would electrically lagging business and sweep us out of the depression doldrums. Other economists just as eminent can paint for you a dismal canvas of chaos and financial ruin, as was the case in Germany.

Here's Effect on You
But let's suppose, for the sake of a simple illustration, that President Roosevelt should start the printing presses whirling tomorrow and double the amount of money in circulation and that, as a matter of reaction, the flow of bank credit likewise would double.

Here's where you likely would get off:
If You Are a Salaried Man—You would find, perhaps, that your cost of living would double as prices went up. Theoretically you would get a raise as your employer's business improved—but if you are making $5 a week, how long do you suppose it

Circuit Court in Session Monday

Negro Murder Cases Docketed for Trial at This Term

The fall term of Hempstead circuit court convenes Monday at Washington with fewer criminal cases on docket than usual. A number of cases carried over from the spring term will be tried.

Four charges of murder are set for trial in October as follows:
Bessie Watts, negro woman, charged with the murder of another negro woman in Hope May 13. Lindsay White, negro, held for the slaying of Isaac Scroggins with a heavy club near Washington July 14. Scroggins was a negro.

Sarah Lloyd and her son Jackson Lloyd, negroes, are charged with the murder of a Hope negro preacher, whose body was found lying on a church lawn one morning several months ago.

Henry Muldrow, negro, is held for the slaying of another negro named William near McNab, September 9. Another chapter in the robbery of the First National Bank of Hope will be brought up again in the trial of June Brashear, charged with being one of the number who participated in the crime and who has been brought to Hempstead county since the April term of court when the others were tried.

Also on the criminal docket is the case of Jeff Whitt, charged with the theft of a car belonging to Dan God-

The faculties of Hope's public schools gathered here Friday and Saturday in preparation for a delayed opening of the school year Monday, October 2.

Elementary pupils met their teachers Friday at the grade schools and obtained book lists.
Registration and classification of senior and junior high school students will begin Monday morning at the city hall. In an announcement earlier in the week Miss Beryl Henry, city superintendent, said it is imperative that all high school students be registered during the coming week.

In the elementary grades, children whose 6th birthday falls on or before November 6 may be entered for this term.

Hope Retail Sales Show Increase of 25 to 50 Per Cent

This Estimate Made by John P. Cox at Kiwanis Club Meeting

INCREASE GENERAL

It Comes From Cotton Sales and Higher Industrial Payroll

Evidence of returning prosperity is to be found aplenty in Hope, due to NRA and other moves of the national administration, according to opinions of Kiwanis club members at their weekly meeting Friday night at the New Capital Hotel.

"Hope retail firms are showing an increase in business over last year's low figure of from 25 to 50 per cent," John P. Cox, local druggist told the club. "There are individual instances of gains of 100 per cent Mr. Cox said, and this increase is due mostly to NRA."

"Not all the cotton reduction checks have been received by farmers in Hope's trade territory yet. And the sale of this year's crop has only just started. Although there are far more buyers in all our places of business from distant points in the trade territory than in many years, the majority of our increase comes Saturday night, after Hope's industrial plants have paid off."

"Industrial workers now have an income large enough to buy the necessities of life, on the average, and in some instances, a few of the items which we all crave. Business is better, but the big fall rush will come when farmers start buying their needs," Cox said.

A. B. Spraggins, manager of the Southern Ice & Utilities Co., spoke briefly on the return of better days for this section. He has charge of next week's program.

Frank Hearne, manager of the Hope Independent Ice Co., spoke briefly.

Cotton Carryover Greatly Reduced

Is Cut One Million Bales, Optimistic Report Declares

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Increased consumption of American cotton has reduced the carryover of the domestic staple by more than 1,000,000 bales, as compared to a year ago.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported Friday that the carryover of American cotton is 11,597,000 as compared to 1,961,000 bales on August 1, 1932.

The bureau commented that the carryover this year is "much smaller than was expected a few months ago, and somewhat smaller than was expected prior to publication of world consumption and mill stocks figures in early September."

"The world mill consumption of American cotton totaled 24,332,000 running bales in the 1932-33 season," the bureau said, "as compared with 22,319,000 bales in 1931-32."

Most of the increase was in the consumption of American cotton. The 14-

Second Hostage Is Freed by Convicts

Victor Wiley and Sheriff Charles Neel Are Released Safely

Indianaapolis, Ind.—(P)—Victor Wiley was released at Nashville, Ind., early Saturday after being kidnapped from his home here Friday night by a man believed to be one of the 10 prisoners who escaped last Tuesday from Indiana state prison.

Wiley, shown photographs of the escaped prisoners, picked out one resembling the man who forced him to leave home and drive to Nashville.

Sheriff Is Released
Indianaapolis, Ind.—(P)—Sheriff Charles Neel of Corydon, Ind., kidnapped as 10 desperadoes made a successful break from the Indiana state prison at Michigan City Tuesday, was freed Friday half way between Valparaiso and Gary.

Police Captain Matt Leach, directing the search for the sheriff by the Indiana state police, said Neel was too nervous to tell anything of his experience. He mumbled incoherently but outside of nervous strain apparently was all right, Leach said.

Neel had spent hours wandering about in woods not far from Gary and finally made his way into the city. Leach said he was unable to tell how many men were in the car from which Neel was ousted, or which direction the men fled.

Neel had gone to the prison to deliver a prisoner from Harrison county. As he sat in the car a part of the convict gang jumped inside, forced him from the wheel and drove away with him as their captive. The rest of the gang ran down the highway, flagged a tourist, took his car and drove away.

Life Sentence for 3 in Luer Trials; Delay in Urschel

Bailey, Bates and Shannon Family Are Convicted, However

JUDGE GIVES TIME

Allows 3 Days for Motions Before Announcing Sentences

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill.—(P)—Prison terms ranging from life to five years were assessed here Saturday by a jury trying five men and a woman for the kidnapping of August Luer, Alton banker.

Eugene Norvell, Jerry Fitzgerald and Mrs. Lillian Chessen were given life sentences.

The others were:
Mike Musiala, 20 years.
Christ Gitcho, 5 years.
Charles Chessen, 5 years.

The state had demanded the death penalty for the kidnapping of the 71-year-old banker and meat packer, who was held five days before being released after the kidnapers failed to collect the $100,000 ransom they demanded.

Urschel Jury Convicts
OKLAHOMA CITY.—(P)—Harvey Bailey, Albert Bates and five other defendants were convicted Saturday of the kidnapping of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City millionaire, by a federal court jury.

Three others were acquitted. Besides Bailey and Bates, those convicted in the $200,000 kidnapping conspiracy were:

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Shannon, their son Armon, Barney Berman, and Clifford Skelly.

Those acquitted were:
Isadore Blumenfeld, Sam Kronick, and Sam Krosenberg.

Judge Edgar Vaughn announced he would grant three days for motions for retrials for those convicted before pronouncing sentence.

Verdict Is Reached
OKLAHOMA CITY.—(P)—A verdict was reported reached shortly before 9 Friday night in the Charles F. Urschel kidnapping trial. It was not to be returned until morning.

The jurors were lounging about their rooms at a hotel playing cards and resting at 9 p. m. Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaughn had instructed them to deliberate until 10 p. m. in event they had not reached a verdict prior to that time.

The return of the jury to the hotel after spending a much shorter time than expected in their chamber in the Federal building lent credence to the report.

Judge Not Notified
Judge Vaughn and District Attorney J. Herbert K. Hyde said they had not been informed that a verdict had been reached.

"Invoking for the first time the new 'Lindbergh Law' providing a maximum penalty of life imprisonment on conviction, the case was given to the jury at 4:10 p. m. Judge Vaughn told them he would not return Friday night. The jury was ordered to deliberate until 10 p. m.

Instructions On Conspiracy
Judge Vaughn instructed the jury that "not all the parties need to have unlawfully planned together originally in order to constitute conspiracy."

"The acts of one conspirator," he said, "bind another, even though the others are passive in accomplishment of the overt acts."

"You are instructed that so long as any of the ransom was in the hands of the alleged conspirators and they were continuing their efforts to exchange same, the conspiracy was in full force and effect as to such conspirator."

Judge Vaughn passed over the cases of Harvey Bailey and Albert Bates with little discussion, but devoted some time and exposition to the cases of the Shannons—the father, R. G.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

New Deal Is Great Boon to Statisticians. Even Tomb of George Washington Feels Depression. Russian Trade Story Is Exaggerated.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Washington has become a statisticians' paradise. Both the statistic and its manager have been given enormously enhanced dignity and prestige under the New Deal.

This administration is concerned vitally with the figures that show progress or lack of progress in its many efforts toward recovery. The old days when the government did tricks with percentages and index figures in attempts to demonstrate improvement are over.

Many of the country's best statisticians have been attracted into government service. Most of them are economists as well and some may be considered members of the "Brain Trust."

Charting the New Deal and measuring its achievements requires many new figures never gathered before. NEA economists working on a code, must know approximately how many persons a given maximum of working hours should re-employ; they must learn how many have been re-employed with the code in operation.

Prices must be measured against purchasing power and the only way the AAA can tell how its farm program is going is by gathering gobs of figures to show the ratio between the farmer's income and living costs. And so on.

Without such statistics, the whole recovery program might go to pot in a fog of ignorance and confusion. That's why the new Central Statistical Board, which includes the ace statistician-economist of the federal agencies, is one of the most important groups in town.

Even statisticians can kid themselves. Some of them match the one about "if all the economists were laid end to end they'd never reach a conclusion" with the assertion that "if all the statisticians were laid end to end it wouldn't make any difference."

Tomb Feels Depression

Despite Sol Bloom's great bi-centennial effort last year, less attention—thanks to the depression—is being paid to George Washington.

Washington's old home and tomb at Mount Vernon from May to August were visited by only 156,000 persons. There were 230,000 in the same period of 1931 and 239,000 in the bi-centennial year in 1932.

Russian Story Spiked

Stories that Governor Henry Morgenthau, Jr., of the Farm Credit Administration had been designated to carry out trade negotiations with the Soviet Union involving $50,000,000 or more were somewhat exaggerated.

So many government agencies were being bothered constantly by persons representing or claiming to represent Russia itself or an interest in Russian trade that it was decided to send them all to Morgenthau, since negotiations would involve farm credits. So the State Department, Agriculture Department, R. F. C., and other agencies now are doing that.

Expanded Trade and Russian Recognition

are in the air, but there's nothing definite.

Roosevelt Says Nothing

Asked about the political situation in New York, where Tammany is threatened with loss of control, President Roosevelt replied: "There's nothing I can say, but there's a lot I'd like to say. I just can't take part in local politics."

Now the politicians are hoping for a sign from Postmaster General Jim Farley, Democratic national chairman.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton
©1933 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

I would not keep house without a cook book. I would not take a trip without a road map, or try to dress without some sort of fashion guide.

Devotees of bridge pour over rules, the lawyer keeps his tomes near at hand, and the business man must be on his toes to keep abreast of the newest and best systems.

Yet the business of running a child is largely left to guesswork. How many mothers have any sort of a handbook to refer to in an emergency, or even to show her the everyday needs of her children? Comparatively few.

Some Seek Facts

The child will always be an experiment if this keeps up. He should be. There is enough common sense in print today about children to fill many libraries. Yet these books are not in the hands of those who most need them. I sometimes think.

It isn't so much that mothers don't want to know. I make my bow to the millions who seek almost every source of knowledge available—meetings, lectures, articles in papers and magazines.

But although these are helpful they are not right at hand when needed. From time to time I have suggested helpful books or magazines about children. I have tried to overcome the prejudice of some mothers that "all this psychology is bunk."

Well, it isn't, but that is beside the point here. Most books on children are not psychological at all, but contain real facts and information about everyday care and everyday affairs.

I think I have spoken of Dr. Fredric H. Bartlett's book on babies, also Dr. Holt's excellent work. Mary Wright Wheeler's "Amateur Nurse." I have recommended. And the books by Langdon, O'Shea, Richardson, Patri, Bundsen, and Sayles. There are so many excellent ones I cannot name them all.

Other Recommendation

Now comes to hand one of the best, "Mother's Encyclopedia," more interesting than its name, compiled by the editors of "Parents Magazine." The four little volumes seem to contain almost everything.

I am not in the way of being either reviewer or advertiser. It matters not to me what books a mother may choose, but when I see a need and an answer, I usually speak up.

We buy every type of book, it seems to me, but the ones we need—we mothers. However, I think we have reached a turning point and the near future will find us reading our children's recipes just as we today look up the rules for our favorite cakes.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

The business woman's home facial treatment must show maximum results with a minimum amount of time involved.

When you dash home from the office looking tired and worn, yet knowing full well that you have a dinner date in an hour or two, at which time you have to present a rested, smiling face, the quick pick-up facial is exactly what you need. That, and twenty minutes complete relaxation. And complete relaxation doesn't mean sitting up manicuring your nails. It means lying flat on the bed with your eyes closed.

First of all, thoroughly cleanse your face and neck. Remove the cleansing cream and apply a thick coating of some reliable anti-wrinkle cream. Put it in around your eyes, the lines on your forehead and the corners of your mouth. Leave it on while you take your bath, fix your nails and rest for twenty minutes.

When you are ready to dress, remove all the anti-wrinkle cream and put on a skin toning lotion. You'll be surprised how rested your face will look.

When that is done, put on your foundation lotion and then your cosmetics. Leave the towel wrapped around your head until all your cosmetics have been applied. Not until you are ready to comb your hair and arrange your coiffure should the towel be taken off.

Funniest, but Uncle Sam still offers farmers pamphlets telling them how to raise more crops—and a bonus to raise less.

Daughter—Going to bed, mother! Aren't you going to sit up and wait for Dad?

NEXT: Correct posture.

One Job Where the Hours Aren't Getting Any Shorter

HERGLOCK

Forgotten Sweetheart

By MARY RAYMOND
©1933 NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BOB WESTON, son of a millionaire, and JOAN WARING, a Memphis girl, are attracted to each other on the train, en route to Memphis. Joan has left college before graduation to assist her family in a financial emergency. Bob is coming to Memphis in connection with the construction of a southern branch of his father's mill.

Bob speaks to Joan but, thinking he is starting a flirtation, she rebuffs him. He notes the initials, "J. W." on her traveling case and at the station hears members of her family call her "Joan." He loses sight of her but tells a friend, DUKE TURNER, that he is determined to find her.

Because of the family's difficulties Joan's sister, PAT, 38 years old, has gone to work. BENNY, the 15-year-old brother, is an invalid and BILL, the older brother, works in a garage.

Joan goes job hunting. In a tea room she sees Duke Turner whom she had known in grammar school days. With him is the attractive young man she saw on the train. Leaving the tea room, Joan passes their table but Bob does not see her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III

JOAN, outside the tea room, was taking her excited self in hand. Well, that was that! She told herself it was ridiculous to feel so let down and disappointed. Had she expected the young man—a stranger—to rush after her? Of course he wouldn't.

It was just as she had thought. The train episode had been a train episode and nothing more. He had forgotten all about her, even though she was wearing the same costume she had worn when he had talked so absurdly and looked as though he were ready to do something dramatic like picking her up and dashing off with her.

It was foolish to have expected anything else. He had wanted to flirt with her on the train and when she wouldn't flirt he had put her out of mind. There had been nothing more to it than that.

For a moment she wanted to speak to Duke Turner. He had glanced up as she passed. If she had, Duke probably would have wondered who she was. And the young man of the train would have thought she was trying to re-open a flirtation. She would stop thinking about him, about those teasing eyes.

"Hello, there, Joan Waring. When did you come home?"

It was Molly Davis speaking. She and Joan had been good friends the last year at Miss Barlington's, before Joan had got the chance to earn her tuition by coaching and assisting as practice teacher at Holbrook.

"It's nice to see you, Molly. I was beginning to think I didn't know a soul in Memphis."

"Town's getting grown. And full of strangers. Have you seen our new skyscraper? The Barnes Building?"

"Yes, I think it's wonderful."

"I didn't know you were working, Molly."

"Don't tell me you hadn't heard. The orchestra was playing a song he liked. 'How much do I love you—I'll tell you no lie. How deep is the ocean? How high is the sky?' Nice tune, nice words. Made a man feel sentimental. It was going to be hard to find that girl than he'd thought. He had searched the streets for her, stared at every pretty girl he met. Good looks, lots of them. But not one matching Joan."

This was getting him no where. And, besides, a girl trip was not the reason for his trip to Memphis. He must get down to earth, start on his real mission here. To-night, instead of going to that Junior League affair with Duke, he should be working on the details of the executive quarters so that he could discuss them with the architects tomorrow.

THE six young sub-debs in brief, gold and red costumes danced off the stage as the orchestra played the final strains of "You Try Somebody Else." It had been a rather clever dance, Bob thought, but he had had just about enough. He had sat through a Spanish tango, a Russian ballet and several songs by an entertaining young blues singer.

He might as well leave, Bob thought. There wasn't a soul he cared about dancing with when the entertainment was finished and tomorrow would be a stiff day. He would explain to Duke and make his departure quietly.

Suddenly the orchestra broke into the strains of an old favorite, "Roses of Picardy." Bob sat back in his seat.

England, and designer of the first perfectly streamlined automobile ever built.

Mr. Pomeroy expressed his views on the motor car of the future and on the labor situation in America as he sailed for England after addressing the convention of the Society of Automotive Engineers in Chicago and consulting with leaders of the American automobile industry.

"The watchword in the industry still is comfort, and American manufacturers, committed also to the constant development of new and persuasive designs, are happy to find that the streamline effects which are demanded by modern taste are contributing great advances in increasing the riding comfort of the cars," Mr. Pomeroy said. "The ride on the back seat still sells motor cars, but the new understanding of streamlining is going to bring about the biggest shift in the interior design, by placing three passengers on the front seat, where the full width of the body may be utilized, untrammelled by the wheel wells. The rear seat probably will hold three as before, making sedans carry six passengers instead of five. The happy wedding of speed and comfort in the modern streamlined motor cars and trains is surprising even the engineers who pioneered streamlining for super-speed only."

Pomeroy is a high priest of the streamline cult. In 1909, more than twenty years ago, he so streamlined a Vauxhall car that with 180 horsepower he turned up 100 miles per hour on the Brooklands track. This tremendous speed for a 3-liter car was revolutionary and early focussed attention on the possibilities inherent in streamlining. The body of that single seater was only fourteen inches across. Then in 1929 Pomeroy designed the ultra in streamlined bodies, a Daimler which is today more advanced than the American 1933 vintage.

The Britisher's picture of the future of the American motor car is tinged by the overseas preference for comfort rather than swank, but he sees the two objectives united in the 1934 American models.

As a pioneer in streamline practice, Mr. Pomeroy stoutly defended the front mounting of the engine, for safe steering and manoeuvrability. "You couldn't shoot a rifle by sighting at the muzzle, and the coxswain of a racing shell, sitting out on the prow would be in a fix to keep in the channel," he said.

But the big change, surprising to the English engineer because it has not been effected before, is the provision of room for three passengers in the front seat. This, he said, is being made possible by the new designs, enabling perfect streamlining to be carried out, even to a narrow mackerel tail.

Although holding admiration for the American industry's confidence in getting large quotas and bidding to them with reliance on merchandising skill, the English manufacturer was critical of the labor situation here.

"The unemployment situation in the United States, continually aggravated by the introduction of labor-saving devices, will become more serious until something which corresponds to our unemployment insurance, is undertaken," he declared. He said that his own firm is employing twice as many men as at its greatest pre-depression peak, and that, far from the deleterious unemployment, the number of Britons who have been out of work for more than the three-months period during which they receive full insurance, is very low. Employees, employers and the government all pay into the unemployment insurance pool.

"British industry has proceeded slowly to mechanize its plants, so that labor has been released slowly enough to be absorbed in other industries, especially the new branches. That is not the American practice," Mr. Pomeroy said.

Sigh, and it is lost on the air;
The echoes bound to a joyful sound,
But shrink from voicing care.
Rejoice, and men will seek you;
Grieve, and they turn and go;
They want full measure of all your pleasure,
But they do not need your woe.
Be glad, and your friends are many;
Be sad, and you lose them all—
And alone you must drink life's gall.
Fast, and your halls are crowded;
Feast, and the world goes by,
Succeed and give, and it helps you
Live,

Parade. Charges for telephones, lights, gas, street car fare, etc., would rise more slowly, since public utility rates are fixed by law.

The simplest possible explanation is that inflation would help the debtor class (those who owe) by taking it out of the creditor class (those to whom money is owed).

It's Not So Simple
But that is not as simple as it sounds for the average man is both debtor and creditor. For example, the man who runs a bill at the corner grocery is a debtor, for that represents money he owes; by the same token, his bank account makes him a creditor, for it represents money the bank owes him.

As compared to inflation, the most abstruse Chinese puzzle would seem almost as simple as a child's A B C's. Predominant and indisputable, however, is the fact that prices would rise; that money would flow more freely, though it would not buy as much. For the whole purpose of inflation is to raise prices and that is accomplished by lowering the value of money. It is all one and the same thing.

Just as deflation beat down commodity prices and almost bankrupted the farmer, sucked capital from industry, rendered millions jobless, and sent stocks crashing to record depths, inflation naturally would tend to do the reverse. It should raise prices for the farmer, replenish the capital of industry and send the stock market up.

There's a Catch Here
All this, however, would be in terms of dollars—not in terms of values. Whether any individual would benefit or suffer by inflation would depend very largely on the extent to which he was a creditor or a debtor.

Leaders in the drive for inflation apparently have no doubt that they are on the right track to recovery. Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma, leader of the inflationist bloc, has summarized these benefits:

"Owners of bank deposits immediately will begin to convert such deposits into commodities, real estate and property to secure the benefits of the advance in price and value."

"Manufacturers will reopen their factories, making a demand for raw materials."

"Labor will be employed and additional demands will arise for products of the farmers; hence stimulate and raise farm and commodity prices."

"Bank credit and bank deposits will be thawed and banks will become active again."

"The people will be able to secure money with which to pay taxes, interest, and debts."

Credit Seen as Key
Opponents of inflation declare the mere issuance of additional money is not the answer to the problem. The difficulty, they say, lies in stagnated credits, which President Roosevelt is trying to accelerate.

There actually is more cash and currency in technical circulation today than there was in the boom days of 1929—$5,600,000,000 now as against $4,800,000,000 in September, 1929.

The trouble, they say, is in lowered credits, which have shrunk from 63½ billion dollars in 1929 to 45 billions today. Credit, not cash, is the medium of 90 per cent of business.

Hence President Roosevelt's new drive to expand and stimulate credit instead of a move to inflate the currency.

Hope received to start the second half. After an exchange of punts and several plays for no gains by either team, Camden started a slow march, which took them to the five-yard line where O'Rear carried it over on a line play.

The fourth quarter saw the Bobcats displaying greater offensive strength. Taking the ball on their own 40-yard line the Bobcats on a series of passes, plunges and end runs carried the ball to the five-yard line where Brown passed to Turner for Hope's only touchdown.

With five minutes to play neither team threatened to score again. The game ended with Camden in possession of the ball on Hope's 40-yard line.

The lineup:
Hope: Grapes and Urban, ends; Brumfield and Houston, tackles; Richards, and Mitchell, guards; Holly, center; Brown, quarterback; Turner and Harp, halfbacks; and Hargis, fullback.

Camden: Arnold and Snider, ends; Cawthon and R. Smith, tackles; C. Cathey and Patterson, guards; O'Neill, center; Graves, quarterback; O'Rear or M. Cathey, halfback; Hayes or N. Cathey halfback, and Tuberville, fullback.

Although domestic mills have been operating at near record levels for the last three months, the bureau said stocks of cotton goods at mills had shown little tendency to accumulate, the heavy output having been shipped into distributing channels.

The bureau estimated a world supply of around 24,011,000 bales of American cotton during the 1933-34 season as compared with 25,963,000 in 1932-33 and 25,864,000 in 1931-32.

Domestic exports during August amounted to 531,000 running bales and was the second consecutive month in which exports were the largest for the corresponding month on record.

LITTLE ROCK — C. E. Hankins, president of the Bank of England, and A. W. Dickinson, cashier of the bank, were summarily discharged by Bank Commissioner Marion Wasson Friday following an investigation of the robbery of the bank by two men Tuesday.

"I was out of the city Tuesday," Mr. Wasson said, "and began an investigation of the robbery when I returned. I discharged the officials because I learned that they had not complied with my orders concerning the handling of cash and protective measures."

"Bank robberies are going to stop in Arkansas, and they will be stopped if the profit is removed from the robbery."

Mr. Wasson's drastic orders were issued about two months ago, and shortly afterward he discharged Charles X. Williams, cashier of the Citizens bank of Booneville, following robbery of the institution.

"In taking this action, discharging the England officials," Mr. Wasson said, "I do not mean to imply that they were connected with the robbery in any manner. They simply failed to comply with the blanket orders—specifically in having $6,000 in cash loose, and not under a time lock, half an hour after the bank was closed for business."

Yell County Vote Exceeds Tax List

Committee Certifies Result, and Hays Prepares Contest Suit

LITTLE ROCK. — (AP) — Brooks Hays announced Saturday he would file a mandamus action seeking to require the Yell county clerk to permit his attorneys to examine the poll books to lay the ground-work for a contest of the nomination of David Terry for congress from the Fifth district in last Tuesday's run-off primary.

Clerk Perry Wiseman refused to permit the examination except on a court order.

DANVILLE, Ark. — Ignoring a request for a recount of the Yell county vote in the Fifth district congressional runoff primary election, the Yell County Democratic Central Committee, meeting here Friday, certified without change the vote turned in by election officials of 32 precincts, although the total vote was 893 more than the number of legal voters named in the official list of poll tax payers.

The vote certified by the committee was:
Brooks Hays ..... 616
David D. Terry ..... 1,338

The list of electors contained names of 1,651 persons who paid 1932 poll taxes before June 15, 1933, the last date on which a poll tax could be paid legally. There is a slight discrepancy between the printed list of electors and records in the state auditor's office, where it shown that 1,653 poll tax receipts were issued in Yell county.

The official returns increased Mr. Terry's vote in the county 278 over previously published unofficial reports and increased Mr. Hays' vote by 46.

Hays to Contest
LITTLE ROCK. — Following the certification Friday of the vote in the run-off primary Tuesday in the Fifth district congressional election, by the eighth central committee of the district, showing D. D. Terry to have 9,776 votes to 9,511 for Brooks Hays, Mr. Hays wrote a letter to Governor Futrell requesting that the special election for the congressional position be deferred until after contest of the Yell county vote in the courts.

Supporters of Mr. Hays pointed out that he had a lead of 595 votes exclusive of Yell county, and they said they were confident that, if the Yell county vote were purged, Mr. Hays would be the Democratic nominee.

Since this purging was not done by the Yell county committee Friday, they said preparations were being made to file a contest suit soon.

Each Hope Star carrier is his own merchant and should be paid each Saturday when he calls, as he is required to settle each Saturday night in full with the Star Publishing company for all the papers he receives. Carriers should not be expected to make repeated calls for collections, when the amount is so small, as the large number of deliveries they make, and the amount of time required in collecting from their customers does not permit this.

Any failure on the part of the subscriber to pay is a direct loss to the young man. Although the amount is small in each individual case, very many such delays or losses could be a serious matter to the carrier that serves you.

This is why the Hope Star urges you to have your dime ready when the carrier calls.
